Minority & Women Doctoral Directory (MWDD)

If you are a doctoral candidate or graduate (or a master's student in certain fields--see below) and would like to have your academic credentials made available to the more than 700 colleges and universities who subscribe to our service, we invite you to be listed in the thirteenth annual edition (2002-03) of the Minority & Women Doctoral Directory.

The Minority & Women Doctoral Directory is a comprehensive national listing of minority and women students who have already received or are about to receive their doctoral degree. While doctoral students and graduates in all fields are eligible to be listed, masters' students and graduates are also eligible in the following areas: the fine & performing arts (e.g., art, music, dance/theatre arts, film, creative writing), architecture/landscape architecture, urban planning, journalism, and nursing. The 2002-03 Directory will be made available to colleges and universities in the United States and will once again prove an important tool in increasing minority and women representation in university faculties.

ELIGIBILITY REQUIREMENTS: Ethnic minority and women students who have been advanced to candidacy for the doctoral or, in certain fields (see above), the master's degree and expect to complete their degree within three semesters (two semesters for masters' candidates) or those who have already completed their degree.

If forms to sign up for this service are not available in your departmental office, please call or write us and we'll gladly mail a form to you; or you may download the form from our web site: <http://www.mwdd.com>. The deadline for submission of forms is August 31st, 2002.

Spring 2002

The thirteenth annual edition of the Minority & Women Doctoral Directory, to be published in fall 2002, will continue to be a comprehensive national listing of minority and women students who have already received or are about to receive their doctoral degree. The 2002-03 Directory will be made available to colleges and universities in the United States and will once again prove an important tool in increasing minority and women representation in university faculties. Students and graduates listed in our past editions have benefited from having their academic credentials made available to the more than 700 colleges and universities that subscribe to our service.

Our main goal this year is to increase the number of students/graduates who participate in the Directory. Towards this end, we hope you will apprise your eligible students of this opportunity, and we have enclosed release forms which they must complete and return. We have also enclosed an MWDD announcement which we hope you will post for your graduate students. While there is no cost for a student to be listed in the 2002-03 Directory, each student must sign and return one of the enclosed release forms to this office by August 31st, 2002. (You may copy more release forms as your needs warrant or call us at the above number and we'll gladly forward more forms to you.)

While doctoral students and graduates in all fields are eligible to be listed, masters' students and graduates are also eligible in the following areas: the fine & performing arts (e.g., art, music, dance/theatre arts, film, creative writing), architecture/landscape architecture, urban planning, journalism, and nursing.

We believe this Directory will continue to be essential as colleges and universities intensify their efforts to recruit minorities and women into their faculties, and we thank you in advance for enabling your students to be included in the 2002-03 Minority & Women Doctoral Directory.

ELIGIBILITY REQUIREMENTS: Ethnic minority and women students who have been advanced to candidacy for the doctoral degree or, in certain fields (see above), the master's degree and expect to complete their degree within three semesters (two semesters for masters' candidates) or those who have already completed their degree. (Non-citizens are eligible if they intend to seek employment in the United States or its territories after completing their education.)
